

PRE-PUBLICATION ANNOUNCEMENT

Discipline With Purpose: Nurturing a Child's Self-Discipline can be a valuable resource for parents, educators, grandparents and home schoolers. For the past 35 years, thousands of adults have been devoted to building and maintaining a school and home culture where young people learn and practice skills of self-discipline. This information, previously available only in seminars and workshops conducted throughout the United States, is now being offered in this 206 page book.

The author has discovered a way to define self-discipline in simple terms so that skill mastery can begin as early as age five. The suggestions in this reference book for teaching the 15 self-discipline skills include best practices in teaching, experiential exercises, poetry, songs and stories that illustrate the skills in action.

All children can attain a level of self-discipline when adults know how to guide them through their developmental stages and intentionally nurture their self-discipline. When I began to read "Discipline With Purpose" I thought it was primarily for teachers but the more I got into it, I realized that its message is as important for parents. I realized too that DWP is a process, more than a program. Employing the wisdom of this book, both in the classroom as well as at home, will make for a more civilized society.

- Janaan Manternach, Author, Catechist and Professor

"Knowing about the fifteen skills is like knowing a secret. It is something that has been there all along but I didn't know how to look for it or use it." - (Joanne Kerins, educator and parent)
